Forecast for Tuesday 13 Oct 2020

Weather: A band of showery rain will push southwards across the region through the first part of the morning, leaving scattered showers behind. As we head into the afternoon, showers will become increasingly isolated with the cloud breaking up to allow some brightness. Blustery northeasterly winds throughout the day.

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 800m: Low through the morning with extensive low cloud, becoming high into the afternoon with breaks in the cloud developing.

Visibility: Moderate or poor during the first part of the morning, becoming good at lower levels later.
